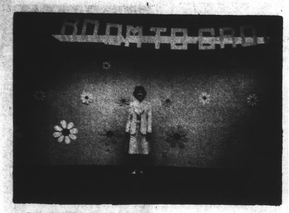
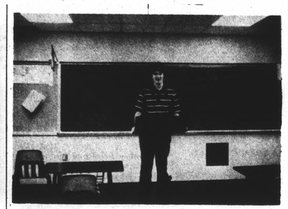
Appomattox Senior 4-H'ers Win In District Contest



Laurie McLean was second place winner in Saturday's District 4-H Dress Revue program.



David Caldwell of Appomattox won in the Boy's Public Speaking Division in Saturday's 4-H District contest.

Among Appomattox winners in District Contest Saturday were Bud Rosser, Sharon Roach, and Tamara Nash.

On Saturday, April 16, sixteen Appomattox Senior 4-H members took part in the East Central District 4-H Contests held at Appomattox County High School. 4-H'ers from the 19 counties and 2 cities that make up the East Central Extension District were on hand for the program.

Fourteen of Appomattox's participants placed either 1st or 2nd in their category and won the right to compete in State 4-H Contests to be held in late June. Among Appomattox's first place winners were: David Caldwell in Boys Public Speaking who spoke on "Child Abuse--A Threat"; Phillip Jacobs in Electric who presented an illustrated talk on "Breadboarding an Electronic Circuit" Dean Page in Share-the-Fun who played the guitar and sang; Lisa Mitchell and Donald Parris who were winners in the Auto Skill Driving Event; Sharon Roach in Archery who presented a demonstration called "Shooting Techniques"; Bud Rosser in Conservation of Natural Resources who presented an illustrated talk on "The Fossil Fuel Crisis"; Baxter Parris in Small Engines who presented a demonstration on "Small Engine Basics"; and Nathan Smith who won in the Tractor Driving Event.

Second place overall winners were Laurie McLean in Dress Reveu; Tamara Nash in Home Management who presented an illustrated talk called "Just Say Charge It"; Ernie Chenault in Wildlife who presented an illustrated talk on "Virginia's Poisonous Snakes"; Susan Parris in Auto Care and Safety who presented an illustrated talk called "Rules Governing the Right-of-Way; and Karen Johnson in Community Beautification who presented an illustrated talk on "Beautifying Your Driveway Entrance."

Also participating in the program were Rhonda Nash who received a blue award in the Meats and Meat Substitutes Category. Rhonda presented a demonstration called "Crock Pot Spaghetti Sauce." Willis Fleshman received a red award for his illustrated talk in the Safety Category. Willis's topic was "Drownproofing."

Appomattox 4-H'ers would especially like to thank those persons from Appomattox that assisted with the program as judges or advisors. Special thanks go to Lawson Ford, Appomattox Truck & Tractor, H. B. Pack Dairy Farm and the ACHS Vo-Ag Department for supplying equipment used in some of the special events.

Continental Telephone Agrees To Acquire South Georgia Independent

Continental Telephone Corporation announced today that it has entered into an agreement in principle to acquire all of the outstanding capital stock of the South Georgia Telephone Company, a privately owned firm serving more than 9,100 telephones in southeastern Georgia.

In making the announcement, Continental President Jim Napier said the transaction will be effected through an exchange of common stock.

South Georgia serves the municipalities of Sylvania, Ludowici, Reidsville, St. George and Folkston. "These exchanges are contiquous to our service areas in that part of the state, which will facilitate a smooth transition," said Napier. The new acquisition will initially become a part of Continental's Atlanta-based Gulf Division and eventually be merged into Continental Telephone of the South.

Ask Your Nurse

If I were a patient, I would want my nurse to:

1. Listen to my fears at being away from home and put me at ease.
2. Introduce me to the head nurse and the nursing staff who will be caring for me.
3. Explain hospital procedure to me, such as visiting hours, morning routine, mealtime, and restrictions regarding the use of radio or TV sets.
4. Explain what all those "buttons" on my bedside console are for—most of all, how to call for my nurse.
5. Explain the tests my doctor has ordered for me—whether I can drink water before the tests, or if I'm not going to receive my breakfast. I'd like to know what to expect.
6. Explain what is going to happen to me the morning of surgery (if that is the reason I'm in the hospital),what time I'll receive pre-op medication, so I can tell my family to be there with me before I get too drowsy.
7. Give me instruction as to deep breathing and coughing so that I'll know the procedure when I return from surgery.

8. Notice when I am having pain—if it is too soon for pain medication—explain that it's too soon and he/she will bring me the medication as soon as it can safely be given again.
9. Check to see that my tray is near, not at the foot of the bed, where I can't reach it.
10. Make a back rub part of my being prepared for sleep each night.
11. Explain any treatment my doctor has ordered and let me know the reason for it.
12. Smile, and let me know she is interested in me—not as a room number but as a person.
13. Be sympathetic and courteous, for every patient is a guest.
14. Talk in words, not letters. N.O.P., B.I.D., P.R.N., I.V. mean nothing to me.
15. Let me help myself as much as my condition permits so that I can become independent again.

4-H Gives Easter Egg Hunt

The Easter Bunny came to town for the Kindergarten students at Pamplin Elementary School. Children were seen hurrying and scurrying about as they eagerly searched for the hidden eggs. The boy and girl who found the most eggs were given slinkies.

After an exciting hunt the children were served refreshments in the school cafeteria. A game was played and the prizes of chocolate bunnies were awarded to the lucky winners.

The Easter Egg Hunt was held on April 8th and sponsored by the Lucky Clover 4-H Club. The members helped with this project were Lisa Dickerson, Cynthia Hix, Vicki Glover, Jane Covington, Donna Hodges, Shelby Smith, Angie Murray, Tommy Williams, Virginia Robinson, Cynthia Gilliam, and Janice Richardson.

Special thanks is extended to Miss Merle Davis for allowing the use of her back yard for this activity.
